911: Some WTC History You Might Not Know

author: George Trinkaus

e-mail: tesla@teslapress.com

After 911 the media romanced a glorious past for the World Trade Center, but what was the true condition of the twin towers, WTC 7, and the rest of the complex prior to September 1, 2001? The censored story says the WTC was expendible and that its demolition had been planned long before.

911: Some WTC History You Might Not Know

by George Trinkaus

from a video-talk at the Portland Central Library, 7/12/05

I lived in New York in the 1960's, when the twin towers were planned and just going up. The 60's was an era of intense urban destruction and frantic build-up in New York. Some of the midtown areas cleared and targeted for "development" looked like they had been bombed, while other outlying residential areas, red-lined by the banks, decayed into abandoned free-fire zones. I left New York in 1971 before the twin towers became the prominent feature of the Manhattan skyline. They were not part of my New York, I am glad to say, for I think I would have resented this development as I did some other new structures, like the hideous Pan Am Building that was stuck up over Park Avenue and Grand Central Station.

Rockefellers

The downtown mega-development known as the World Trade Center was the brainchild of the Rockefellers. I remember photos in The New York Times of Nelson and David glowing over architect's models of those obscene towers. You never see the name "Rockefeller" in any of the official post-911 WTC histories. The golden name has been disassociated from the dark imagery of 911. What is a conspiracy theory anyway without a Rockefeller in it? The Rockefeller clout teamed up with the powerful New York and New Jersey Port Authorities, and this urban-removal juggernaut destroyed 75 blocks of historic lower Manhattan.

farewell, Radio Row

The area targeted for the WTC included a neighborhood I loved called Radio Row. The district began in the 1920's and grew into an experimenter's dream world of many blocks where exotic surplus electronics, the fall-out of defense technology, spilled out into the street. The electronics storekeepers organized. God knows how many other downtown communities organized. They got little coverage in The Times. All resistance was crushed. Did the Rockefellers sign off on the 911 demolition? I don't know. One slender Rockefeller connection (through NBC and 911) is Paul Bremmer, the protege of Henry Kissenger, who, in turn, was the protege of the Rockefellers. Interviewed on NBC that momentous morning Bremmer was so on-message with the official propaganda line that I have speculated (in my NBC Spins 911) that the bin Laden memo all the media was reading from that day may have originated at Bremmer's own desk.

Here's some more you might not know that damned rAT

In the early 1960's the CIA began a project in Italy called the Centro Mondiale Commerciale* (the World Trade Center). It was originally formed in Montreal, then moved to Italy. Among it's board of directors was Clay Shaw, infamous CIA figure detailed in Oliver Stone's movie "JFK". In elegant headquarters in Rome and Geneva, they announced to the world the great role they would play in world trade. The board also consisted of far-right wing ex-fascisti and Nazis involved in petroleum and armaments. Anti-communist OAS alumni filled out the roster. Their unstated true purpose was the re-establishment of European Fascism and the continuation of the Cold War, a very profitable enterprise for these global gun dealers. The assassination of JFK was actually planned as soon as he was elected, as evidenced by fake 'Oswalds' creating a leftist "legend" being reported as early as 1960. The NYC WTC itself may have been a Super-Spook Operation from it's inception. There's alot of evidence that explosives were built into the structure during initial construction. An enigma inside a riddle. *(on the trail of the assassins by jim garrison)

What was stored there

Jody Paulson

Another thing not everybody knows about the WTC is that up to $160 Billion in gold was rumored to be stored there. Only a small fraction of this was ever recovered. I was talking to a friend the other day who was telling not been enlightened yet about how the Dallas Petroleum Club members included a young George Herbert Walker Bush and a certain George De Morenchildt, who was directly involved in getting Lee Harvey Oswald a job at the Texas Schoolbook depository as well as being a liason in Guatemala for the gun running and field training for the Bay of Pigs fiasco. The plot thickens from there, but connecting the dots back to New Orleans, Clay Shaw and David Ferrie,(Joe Pesci in J.F.K.)back to Guatemala and the C.I.A. through a character named Major L.M. Bloomfield,(a former agent with the Office of Strategic Services) you arrive at "Permindex" a shell corporation for C.I.A. Black Op's. Later involved with Italy's P2 Freemason* scandal to bring down the Italian Government. I won't scream the Name George Bush out to you. But the New York Times crossword puzzle is complicated too sometimes! He was involved in Guatemala and Permindex at that time, and strangely enough cannot remember where he was on November 22nd, 1963. Anyone who was alive then can remember what color socks they wore that day. Funnier still was the amount of 33rd* degree Freemasons appointed to the Warren Commission, including Gerald Ford...but secret society links would make this all too easy to figure out. I wish I had proof of Claw Shaw being a Freemason, I only know his Dallas Trade Mart building had 33 sections*, the highest degree in the Scottish rite, coincidence? I wonder. An enigma inside a riddle. Thank you rAT!

When Garrison searched Shaw's home he found a black hooded cape, several small bullwhips, and big hooks in the bedroom wall. His Bohemian Grove costume?
